

GOOD ROADS MAIN THING

Uncle Bill Did Not Understand
The Proposition at First

BUT WAS SOON CONVINCED

"Seems to me the country's gone mad about taxes," exclaimed one of the men at the store.

"That's right, I saw an article in our country paper about a new tax for State Aid for road building. It read mighty fine; but I smelled higher taxes behind it O. K."

"I sometimes wish I had been born twenty-five years ago, before State Aid and lots of fool tax schemes had got started. What do you say, Uncle Bill?"

The old gentleman addressed smiled good humoredly, scratched his bald spot, and narrowed his pale gray eyes, before he said, "Well, I don't know. You youngsters always talk about things as if they was bran new."

"Well, Uncle Bill, I never heard of State Aid for roads in Kentucky before, did you?"

"There's a thousand and one things you ain't heard of, I reckon. I know one thing for sure, and that is that this pike that runs through the county from Mayesville to Lexington was built with State Aid money all right."

"Is that so?"

"Sure it's so. Why in 1831 the state voted money for building hard roads. The state employed an engineer and a whole lot of other men, and they built some fine roads. Course, I ain't old enough to remember all this; but I've heard men talk that helped build that road. You see, State Aid is eighty-two years old any way; and I reckon it's a sight older than that."

"Uncle Bill, how much money did Kentucky, the state of Kentucky, pay on that road from Mayesville to Lexington?"

"It was $213,200 in six years, and in that time they built sixty-four miles of road."

"Did that $113,200 foot the whole bill for that road?"

"Nope, that was just about one half of the cost. Roads came high then because all the metal on the road was hand broke; and the blasting out of that metal had to be done with old fashioned tools and black powder. You can figure that out and you'll find that road cost almost $6,700 a mile to build."

"Gee whis, we could build a road like that new for about $4,000, couldn't we?"

"Sure we could. I tell you fellows folks is always growling and I reckon they always will, especially about taxes."

"But, Uncle Bill, you forget we have county engineers and a state engineer and a lot of office holders and experts and things to pay without State Aid."

"There you go again. What'd I tell you about folks grumbling. Why in 1837 the Chief Engineer got a salary of $5,000 and he had two assistant engineers at $3,000 each. Besides there were nine other experts who got among them $13,500. So you see, seventy-six years ago this state paid in salaries for men to develop, inspect and construct roads, $24,500. I reckon you'll agree with that those men built some good roads all right?"

"Yes you did; and the roads are still fine."

"Didn't they make your land and mine worth more money?"

"Yes."

"Now listen to me. Don't get in the habit of grumbling about a tax just because it is a tax. If it'll make land more valuable, don't say a word. If you must grumble, grumble when you're sure a tax ain't being spent right; but don't grumble because it is a tax."

The Coal Tax

When the Pennsylvania legislature imposed a tax of 2 1/2% ad valorem on anthracite coal at the mine breaker, it opened a new contest between State right and Government policy. Such a tax violates in spirit the Federal Constitution, which forbids any state from taxing exports without the consent of Congress. Any receipts accruing from an export tax must go into the Federal Treasury. Historically, a coal tax has been tried, but it was collected during the Civil War, and was a war measure only.

Instead of a tax of national benefit sanctioned by the strenuous struggle of a great country, here is a charge drawn from the public for the selfish interest of a particular state. This tax will run from 3 to 11 cents a ton, and will average about 6 cents a ton for all sizes of coal. It will add $4,500,000 annually to the income of the State of Pennsylvania. One half of the total will be apportioned to the counties producing the coal. The other half will be subject to use by legislative appropriations. City-aldermanic boards will have entire control of the sums assigned to the cities. The tax will not alone materially reduce local taxation, but will in some cases eliminate it entirely.

Answer to objections is claimed in the taxing power granted to states in the case of some other products. But the economical status of coal is different. Unquestionably, the tax is oppressive, and the consumer is its victim. It is a selfish tax. It does not protect home labor. It does not even stimulate domestic industry. It merely increases cost to the man least able to pay it, for the poorest purchaser will be the one to feel most heavily the extra burden. And it means dire increase in the already overwhelming cost of living.

A coal tax is also economically unsound. It puts restraint upon the development of a valuable source of heat and power. It decreases the use of a beneficent agency in the advancement of community interest. It burdens production by taxing industrial necessity. And it is a new proof of the economic inefficiency of the average legislator, acting in bulk form.—Wall Street Journal.

Sheep Goes Four Months Without Water

Washington, June 28.—Sheep on the Nebo national forest, Utah, go four and a half months without water except for such moisture as they get from the dew and the juices of forage plants.

Grazing sheep on a range entirely destitute of water is a recent innovation due to the increasing demand for forage and the efforts of the forest officers to find a place on the forest ranges for all the stock that can safely be admitted. The area on the Nebo, which has now proved usable, is high and rocky, a portion of it being above the timber line, and it has neither springs nor streams of sufficient size or accessibility to be used for stock-watering purposes. The grazing season lasts from June 15 to October 31, and during this period of four and a half months the animals do not get a drink.

Under such conditions, however, the sheep have done extremely well, and last year's lambs from this range had an average weight at the close of the season of 68 pounds on the Chicago market, which was rather above the normal weight from that vicinity.

In one area on the Targhee forest in Idaho sheep get water only twice during the four-months summer grazing season. There is no water on the range, but the sheep are driven to a nearby stream lower down on the mountain side. Lambs from this range weighed 65 pounds on the Chicago market.

"Do You Choose Your Children?"

Under this heading, one of the leading periodicals published in the United States, sets forth the findings of several prominent scientists who have been making investigations along the line of eugenics. These eminent men found that there are more than four million (4,000,000) children in this country alone that are deficient mentally and physically. Thirty per cent of the children in some of the public schools are below the normal standards of mental development. There are 200,000 individuals in the United States that rank as imbeciles. And (the article add) "with the rarest exceptions the cause of imbecility is heredity—and heredity alone!" Scientists on both sides of the Atlantic are gravely admitting that within three centuries at the present rate of the increase of insanity, the world would be one vast insane asylum.

It was found that by proper mating, blemishes and diseases would work out in three or four generations, while by improper mating, and continued violation of the laws of morality, the conditions would be accentuated in the succeeding generations. Every man and woman should give serious heed to the discoveries of these renowned scientists, as heavy responsibilities respecting the coming generation are resting upon them, and their own future happiness as well as that of their offspring is involved.

How remarkably these latest conclusions prove the inspiration of the ancient Hebrew Scriptures, and vindicate the wisdom of the prophets and the servants of the Lord! Moses, in that wonderful code of laws given to the Israelites, declared that the "sins of the father would be visited upon the children unto the third and fourth generation."—Exodus 20:5

The Prophet Ezekiel, speaking as the mouthpiece of the Lord says—"The fathers have eaten sour grapes (have sinned), and the children's teeth are set on edge (have suffered the consequences)."—Ezekiel 18:2. But the Prophet Jeremiah adds—"In those days they shall say no more, The fathers have eaten a sour grape and the children's teeth are set on edge, but every one shall die for his own iniquity: every man that eateth the sour grape, his teeth shall be set on edge." The prophet then proceeds to explain that in the new dispensation when the New Covenant is in force and when the law of heredity is no longer in operation, the Lord will write His perfect law (impress the principles of justice and love), upon every human heart.—Jeremiah 31:29-34.

In the meantime, all should strive to conform their lives to the laws of morality as expressed in the divine Scriptures that their days may be long in the land and filled with blessings and true happiness, and that their children may be born with a heritage of health and strength—a sound mind in a sound body. None should ever lose sight of this tremendously important fact, that the laws governing the moral realm are as absolutely rigid and inflexible as those governing the material universe. Every deviation from these laws must bring the inevitable consequence. Cause and effect are indissolubly related.

State Tuberculosis Commission

A young Louisville mechanic came into the Health Car Exhibit of the Kentucky Tuberculosis Commission when it was first opened.

"Good exhibit here. Do I look like I had tuberculosis?"

"Not very much," the attendant replied.

"Well, seven years ago two doctors told me I had it and that I had only a few months more to live. My wife had just died from the disease, too. I went to the third doctor, in a little town over in Eastern Kentucky, and he said he could cure me."

"What did the doctor tell you you must do?" asked the attendant.

"Told me I had got to do exactly what he said. He didn't give me any medicine to speak of, but followed just about the line of treatment you teach here. For three weeks he wouldn't let me lift my hand to do anything I could keep from doing. He told me what I could eat; gave me lots of eggs and milk; made me stay out all day and sleep with all my windows open at night. In three weeks I was enough better so that I began to do a little work again; and I've been at it ever since. Of course, I ain't what you'd call robust; but still I'm in pretty fair shape and manage to do a day's work every day."

"My wife and I had one child, a boy a year old when the mother died. Folks said that of course with two consumptive parents he could never live. I had to take care of him after his mother died; a lot of work, and I don't suppose I did it as well as a woman could. I've taken care of him in just the same way that I've taken care of myself and now he's just as healthy and strong as any other eight-year old boy. Don't tell me that the kids have got to inherit consumption if their parents have it."

THE VILLAGE BAND

REPRESENTATIVE KEENE, of Fort Scott, will introduce a bill authorizing towns to appropriate money for the support of the local band. His theory is that a good band is worth all it costs to any town, and as for a bad band, there is always hope that it may improve with proper encouragement.

The above is a brief extract from a legislative report published in The Kansas City Star. If Representative Keene introduces his bill he will at least have the consolation of knowing that a great many worse bills have been introduced in that and other legislatures and have become laws. The village band is an institution which ought to be recognized and encouraged. It is a good thing for the people, and while some of these bands are pretty bad from a musical standpoint, Mr. Keene is quite right in saying that they at least can have the consolation and advantage of an opportunity for improvement with the hope and expectation that they will improve the opportunity. "Music by the band" enlivens many a festive occasion and the local inhabitants can point with pleasure and pride to the organization and get a great deal of enjoyment from the entertainment it provides.

Anything which enlivens the locality where it exists in an innocent and pleasurable way is to be commended. It seems as if the village band is not as much of an institution as it used to be and if such is the case it ought to be resuscitated. The score or more members get a great deal of fun out of the weekly practice night and when they are blowing their horns, even discordantly, they are not in bad business. Another phase of it is that they serve to give the village identity, publicity and perhaps reason for pride. There will be more festive occasions if there is a band to help make them a success, and this promotion of sociability is really worth while in a community. Naturally each village band holds a fair some time in the winter, at which the people get together and are entertained and come to know each other better and think of each other more highly. Whatever contributes to the increase of sociability in the smaller places deserves to be encouraged.

One of the faults found with living in the country is the lack of entertainment, and if the farmers, their wives, the sons and their daughters can come into the village several evenings each year to hear the band, it makes life just so much more enjoyable for them and just so much pleasanter. By all means every village ought to have a band and, if possible, a good one.

Why Snow is Warm

Snow is warm by virtue of its light and woolly texture. But it is also warm on account of its whiteness. Had snow been black it would have absorbed the heat of the sun and melted quickly. Instead, it reflects heat, and the reflected heat falls upon bodies above the snow, while the warmth of the earth is preserved beneath it.
